Position

Job Title: Corporate Counsel

Reports to: Chief Legal Officer

Hours: Full-time

Position Summary: The Corporate counsel will perform and oversee a broad variety of legal tasks.

Description of the Position

In 1974 at 26 years of age our founder, Daryle Doden, decided he was ill-suited to fulfill the ministry roles for which he had been trained. With a wife to support and two children to feed, he entered the marketplace, only to find no one wanted to hire a person whose only academic credential was a Bible and Music degree.

In his own words, “No one told me when I was in Bible school that a left-brained, analytical, bottom line, non-social introvert is probably not going to make it in ministry. I resigned to enter the marketplace only to find no one was willing to take a chance on me. I did the only thing I knew to do—construction and related-type work.”

“One day while preparing a quote, I called a local ready-mix plant for a price on concrete reinforcing bar. The manager, Argyle Bassett, said he could give me a price but that he had no product to sell because there was a shortage of rebar. Ryan Hoover, a young man working with me, suggested that we contact Glen Sharp, a mutual acquaintance of ours who owned a steel service center.”

“Mr. Sharp located five tons for us to sell. We sold that five tons and later five more tons, using phone booths in Fort Wayne as our ‘office’ so as to save long distance charges. Mr. Sharp suggested we start a business and with his help, Ambassador Steel Corporation was formed. Our goal was to be “ambassadors for Christ” in the marketplace—to honor God, respect others, work hard, and make a living.” Over time, Daryle built Ambassador Steel into an industry leader and then, in 2008, sold it to a subsidiary of Nucor Steel. This marked a new beginning for Daryle: the pursuit of a long-held dream to start a different kind of private equity investment firm, one with a legacy mindset and philanthropic intent. Ambassador Enterprises embodies that dream. Rather than solely focusing on maximizing shareholder value, AE seeks investments that will bring three returns—eternal, financial, and cultural.

AE has a unique business model and a unique culture. We value collaboration—by which we mean communication that is both highly assertive and highly cooperative. We also value creative problem solving. We are seeking an attorney suited to thrive in this culture; someone with the skills and temperament to collaborate hand in hand with our senior leadership and affiliate leaders, as well as with the leaders of our internal investment lanes, in seeking creative legal solutions at the speed of business.

Description of the Person

The Corporate Counsel must be a person of godly character. We are seeking someone who is trustworthy with unimpeachable integrity, and who also has a humble attitude and a servant’s heart.

The ideal Corporate Counsel is comfortable in strategic roles and excels in tactical/technical roles. They are flexible, able to pivot easily between tasks, or to shift from tactical to strategic roles, with ease and on short notice. They are self-starting and results oriented.

Professionally, we are seeking an attorney with an Indiana license in good standing, with a minimum of two years of experience. Aptitude in one of the following fields is preferred: labor, employment and benefits, corporate law, or mergers and acquisitions. We need an attorney who is comfortable operating within several different fields, and in consulting outside counsel in fields where they lack expertise. The willingness to stretch and to learn new areas of law will be required.

Relationally, the Corporate Counsel is both personable and personal, capable of building trusting relationships inside and outside of AE and its affiliates. They are capable of communication that is high-impact, direct, and clear, while remaining friendly, caring, and consummately professional.

In the words of our founder, "Business is about people, processes, and problem-solving. We look for leaders who are principle-based, purpose-driven, people-centric strategic problem-solvers."
